IN THE INAUGURAL fDi STRATEGY AWARDS 2016, BARCELONA’S INVESTMENT PROMOTION AGENCY HAS TAKEN TOP HONOURS, WITH AWARDS GOING TO CITIES ALL OVER THE WORLD FOR THEIR EFFORTS TO PROMOTE, ATTRACT AND RETAIN INVESTMENT. CATHY MULLAN REPORTS

IPA of the Year
The City Council of Barcelona has been named as our IPA of the Year in the inaugural fDi Strategy Awards 2016. The city offered the judging panel a well thought out and clearly defined strategy, marrying the clever use of technology and urban planning strategies with overall promotion effectively. The city’s successful FDI record is testament to these efforts, with the support of a top-class regional agency, Catalonia Trade & Investment. During a time when FDI flows to Europe have been in decline, both Barcelona and wider Catalonia have seen increases.

Trade missions, networking events and a sense of community engages the agency with investors at every stage of the process, while practical assistance for companies is a standard offering.

Expat support
Amsterdam, Netherlands (Amsterdam Inbusiness)
The city’s Expatcenter aims to meet the needs of international companies and their expatriate employees, including providing a single point of contact for all practical information.

Brno, Czech Republic (Brno City Municipality)
The city’s Expat Centre helps foreign professionals working and living in the city, providing information and consultancy services.

China strategy
Edinburgh, UK (City of Edinburgh Council)
Edinburgh has a strategic alliance with Shenzhen, and provides incubator space in the city for investors from Shenzhen, with a reciprocal facility in China for investors coming from Edinburgh.

Manchester, UK (Manchester Investment and Development Agency Service)
The city is engaged in the Manchester China Forum in order to build links with the Chinese market, efforts that have been bolstered by the Beijing Construction Engineering Group’s work on the city’s airport, securing links to Hong Kong.

Nottingham, UK (Nottingham City Council)
Nottingham City Council operates an office in Ningbo, which has been identified as a target area for attracting investment. Trade delegations have been sent to China to promote this strategy.

Chicago, US (World Business Chicago)
The city’s China strategy has generated a memorandum of understanding, making Chicago the US FDI gateway for several Chinese cities, including Beijing, Shanghai and Tianjin. World Business Chicago also has an office in China.

India strategy
Manchester, UK (Manchester Investment and Development Agency Service)
Manchester’s India Steering Group was established to leverage opportunities and build links with the Indian market.

Nottingham, UK (Nottingham City Council)
Nottingham City Council has office space in Chandigarh, while also sending trade delegations to India.

Performance management
Barcelona, Spain (City Council of Barcelona)
In addition to workshops and roundtable gatherings to improve staff’s professional skills, employees at the City Council of Barcelona are encouraged to attend regular industry seminars and events. Barcelona’s Information Systems Institute allows management to measure and track personal performance and development goals.

Durango, Mexico (Ministry of Economic Development)

London, UK (London & Partners)
A biannual appraisal process allows staff to be reviewed against a set of determined targets and training goals, while leads and project data are monitored via a company-wide customer relationship management system.

Eindhoven, Netherlands (Brainport Eindhoven)
Staff are reviewed and assessed against a set of targets, measured by leads, meetings and projects. A national tracking system allows regional bodies to co-operate on sharing leads.

Tel Aviv, Israel (Tel Aviv Global and Tourism)
The city’s Center for Economic & Social Research supports the performance measuring process, providing statistical data that is available to the public.

Regeneration scheme
Belfast, UK (Belfast City Council)
A regeneration and investment strategy was recently launched, which focuses on maximising investment opportunity and is supported by an £18.7m ($23.8m) investment fund for the city centre core.

Cardiff, UK (City of Cardiff Council)
A Central Cardiff Enterprise Zone is to be developed in the city centre. The 57-hectare site will be located beside a central station hub with transport links to London, and offers a range of financial and practical incentives.

Cork, Ireland (Cork City Council)
Cork’s Tramore Valley Park, which is located on a former landfill site, will be developed as a national recreation facility. Cork’s City Centre Movement Strategy is being developed to improve the circulation and efficiency of public transport.

London, UK (London & Partners)
London is undergoing several major developments, including the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park, which will house residential and office developments; Vauxhall Nine Elms Battersea, which is London’s largest regeneration project; mixed-use Old Oak Common; King’s Cross, mixing retail, home and work space; and Royal Docks, a 25-hectare development with more than 3000 residential units and leisure and work space.

Lyon, France (Invest in Lyon)
Lyon will be home to Part-Dieu, set to be France’s second largest business district after La Défense in Paris. When completed, office space will total 140,000 square metres. The city’s Carré de Soie will become an urban hub for leisure, business and residential facilities.

Sister city programme
Belfast, UK (Belfast City Council)
Belfast’s numerous sister city relationships include economic and trade development links with Dublin and Boston.

Chicago, US (World Business Chicago)
Chicago’s Sister City International organisation forms part of World Business Chicago, and fosters links with its 28 global sister cities. This improves investment attraction and cultural exchange.

Smart city
Bilbao, Spain (Bilbao City Council)
The city has a local hub that facilitates the openness to disruptive technologies, including smart-city applications.

Galway, Ireland (Galway City Council)
The city council has recently signed up to a Smart City initiative, with the aim of creating a public Wi-Fi and Open Data source network.

Bristol and Bath, UK (Invest in Bristol & Bath)
Bristol City Council works closely with the University of Bristol to create a platform which draws on open data sources and allows companies to utilise big data.

Tel Aviv, Israel (Tel Aviv Global and Tourism)
A beta site in part of the city is enabling start-ups to experiment with new smart city technologies.

Taipei, Taiwan (Taipei City Government)
The city’s government has engaged in a range of smart city initiatives, including sharing transportation systems, fibre-optic connectivity infrastructure, free city-wide wireless internet and municipal cloud services.

Worker training
Belfast, UK (Belfast City Council)
Investors in Belfast can take advantage of training support, which offers investors help with training costs up to 40%.

Glasgow, UK (Invest Glasgow)
The Glasgow Guarantee offers wage subsidies of up to 50% to investors employing apprentices and graduates under 20 years of age.

Vranje, Serbia (City of Vranje)
The city puts a focus on the retraining and further education of its workforce.

Northern Ireland, UK (Invest NI)
Invest NI’s Assured Skills, a joint initiative with the province’s employment and learning department, gives investors a guarantee that they will have access to necessary skills and that future needs will be met.

IPA staff development
Scotland, UK (Scottish Enterprise)
Employees have access to its sales academy, which offers continuous staff professional development in training courses, and further education opportunities.

Education cluster
Bilbao, Spain (Bilbao City Council)
Bilbao University City is a development of new education infrastructure to foster innovation and knowledge sharing in engineering, telecommunications and health.

Soft landing scheme
Derby, UK (Marketing Derby)
The agency’s ‘red carpet scheme’ connects investors with local experts in property, finance, recruitment and legal services, among others.

Izmir, Turkey (İzmir Development Agency)
İzmir Development Agency will pay rent and other utility expenses for new investors for one year, as part of its welcome package.

Düsseldorf, Germany (Office of Economic Development)
The city’s Office of Economic Development offers innovative and digital companies a welcome package, which includes a range of tailored services.

Cornerstone investor
Derby, UK (Marketing Derby)
Engineering giant Rolls-Royce has been headquartered in the city for more than 100 years, and has invested further with the construction of a £400m ($509m.) aerospace campus, which will also improve local transport infrastructure.

Overall incentives
Ghent, Belgium (City of Ghent)
Gwangju, South Korea (Invest in Gwangju)
Foshan, China (Foshan Investment Promotion Agency)

Return on Investment Winners
Dhaka’s Chamber of Commerce and Industry in Bangladesh has topped the ranking for return on investment (ROI) for budget. The chamber promotes the city as a regional hub for business by identifying opportunities in the value chain that could be exploited by foreign investors. It has also established a local and international business network, supported by matchmaking sessions to expand business networks.

Coahuila state in Mexico’s Sedect organisation ranks second for budget ROI, which covers promotional trips to foreign markets. Chihuahua state’s Secretariat of Economy uses its budget to identify prospects, which are then exploited during targeted events.

Barcelona ranks first in FDI’s inaugural ROI ranking for personnel. The city’s investment promotion task force includes several teams, including an economic and data group, which benchmarks locations; a strategic sectors team, which provides insight on local sectors and clusters; and a landing support team, which monitors new investors and offers support.

Dublin takes second place for ROI for personnel, with teams from the city council covering both international relations and economic development in its efforts to attract investment.

Meanwhile, Catalonia Trade & Investment’s team, based in Barcelona, is structured into investor promotion and services and project managements teams, to attract initial investment and then offer specific support to investors.

The Hungarian Investment Promotion Agency has a headcount of 124, most of whom have the core responsibility of investment promotion at the agency’s headquarters.

The Andalusian government is aiming to attract local talent back to its shores, including incentives for hiring skilled Andalusian workers from abroad.

Multimodal infrastructure award
Duisburg, Germany (Business Promotion Agency Duisburg)

The city has a range of water, rail, road and air transportation and connectivity options. Several freight lines from Duisburg to China are regarded as the new Silk Road, and open up Asian markets to an increased number of investors.

Diversification strategy
Barcelona, Spain (City Council of Barcelona)

The city has experienced a transition to knowledge intensive activities, while still retaining a large industry base.

Methodology
For these awards, the fDi Intelligence division of the Financial Times considered all the submissions we have ranked between December 2015 and December 2016 in the FDI Strategy category of fDi Rankings. This totalled 124 locations.

IPA of the Year and Bespoke Awards
The judging panel reviewed all the submissions to establish a list of bespoke awards and the IPA of the Year.

Return on Investment Ranking
For the ROI ranking, the budget and staff information that is provided on the FDI Strategy submission was recorded, alongside FDI data for the corresponding year where applicable. This data was collected from fDi Markets, the online FDI tracking tool from fDi Intelligence. Analysis was carried out on this data to determine the efficacy of these resources employed by IPAs and those responsible for attracting FDI. These results were then scored, with 10 being the highest score available.

Best IPA Web Strategy
For these awards, the judging panel reviewed any information on the FDI Strategy surveys pertaining to web promotion activities.

Marketing Slogan
For these awards, the judging panel reviewed the marketing slogans of the 124 locations.
